

dot patrick norguet

Patrick Norguet is among those rare contemporary designers who, through a meticulous attention to details, through a global vision and an inimitable culture of project, is able to transform even the simplest object into an idea of home. The latest item designed by the French designer collects the symbolic values of the ideal home, expressing them into soft curves, enveloping geometries, tactile materials and basic structures. Norguet has designed an upholstered armchair called Dot. It is related to the more traditional recognizable and appreciated products, changing their familiar traits into a contemporary object that summarizes the spirit of our time. Norguet's project is characterized by a unique and solid shape with a curved backrest, which develops gently in a structural element, while the upholstery gives stability and comfort to the seat, raised off of the ground by a contrasting architectural frame that forms the base, available in metal.
